Once there lived a king. He was extremely fond of hunting. His ministers advised him not kill innocent animals. The king turned a deaf ear. One day a lion attacked him. He struck the lion with his sharp arrows. The lion was seriously wounded. Before falling dead to the ground he struck the king's right arm with great force. Half of the flesh of the arm peeled off. The royal surgeons amputated the arm to save the king's life. The king grumbled against fate.

After two years, the king went hunting. He lost his way in the thick forest. Some wild people caught hold of him. They were in search of a man to offer as a sacrifice to the forest god. The head priest saw the king. He said his people," the man is not worthy to be offered as a sacrifice. He is not complete in body. He has no right arm. Leave him." The people let the king go. Then the king realized that the loss of his right arm has saved his life. He thanked god. He never went on hunting again.
